

Christopher Ayers

Counsel

Chris joined Seeger Weiss as Counsel in September 2017. His practice focuses on class action, mass tort and complex commercial litigation involving consumer protection, investment fraud, antitrust and pharmaceutical injury.

Prior to joining Seeger Weiss, Chris worked as a senior trial lawyer in the New York office of a leading national law firm, where he focused on corporate and securities litigation, alternative dispute resolution, and domestic and foreign investment recovery. He has successfully tried numerous jury and bench trials to verdict or decision in state and federal courts throughout the U.S.

Chris was a four-year varsity athlete on Brown University's wrestling team, through which he developed a focus and discipline that serves him well in the courtroom today. While attending University of San Diego School of Law,

Chris received the CALI Award for Advanced Trial Advocacy and the Virginia C. Nelson Graduate Prize in Advanced Advocacy.
